THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

For March 15. "The Riot at Ephesus." (Acts xiz, 20-40.)

CONTEXT—Last lesson ending with the twentieth verse of this chapter gave an account of Paul's wonderful success at Ephosias. To-day we shall see how quickly public sentiment changed. From a state of popular favor he passed into one of bitter antagonism. The occasion for the revulsion in feeling is found in the intervening verses, 21 to 28. It all grew out of the mercenary spirit that so frequently dominates a class of tradesmen. Demetrius, a silversmith, who made shrines, found that his business was endangered by the influence of Paul. Appealing to his fellows, he represented that even the worship paid so long to Diana would be despised. Full of wrath they bagan to cry, "Great is Diana of the Ephesians." The multitude had no purpose except to defend the ancient religion. The leaders expected to array the sentiment of the town against the spostle.

CONFUSION—(Verse 28.) The whole city was soon excited, as the outery spread from lip to lip, from house to house, from street to streat. A mass of ignorant people moved by passion in, one direction presents a frightful spectacle. It is so in our day and country. Among orientalists the case is greatly worse. Travelers declare that sometimes under such influences the most savage deeds are enacted. In this instance the multitudes were confused, scarcely showing the cause of the commotion. Gradually it was noised about that the Christians had made an attack upon the popular religion than which there could be no greater of femss. Whatever may be their practice men may be more ardent in their religious convictions than in any other. Selsing two of Paul's colaborers, men from Macedonia, foreigners, the Ephesian mob rushed with them into the theater, the usual place of course.

COURAGE—(Verses 29 and $1.) The situation hearms critical. The lives of two mentals and the cause of two mentals.

them into the theater, the usual place of copcourse.

COURAGE—(Verses 30 and 31.) The situation became critical. The lives of two men were in jeopardy, both of them helpers in the gospel. One had been close to Paul, one of the two had been baptized by him II Cor. i, 16; whose hospitality had been shared (Rom. xvi. 23), and the other was destined to be a traveling companion on the journey to Rome. (Acts xxvii, 2). Will the apostle abandon such men to their fate? Besides, the cause of religion was involved.

"UNFIT FOR WORK"

Doctor's Verdict and How Mr. Graham Disregarded It.

Mr. Graham Disregarded it.

"The doctor said I was not fit for work and that if I wanted to live I would have to give up business," said F. J. Graham of No. 125 Jefferson street, Peoria, Ill.

"And I was incapacitated," he continued. "It was a kind of incipent parayltis and it is due to Dr. Williams Pink Pilis for Pale People that I am now in perfect health again. First I would be hot, then cold and clammy and at times my body felt as if pierced by needles. There were terrible pains all over me and then I would have no feeling at all. A numbness sometimes came over me and I could not move. With it all were agonizing headaches and a pain in the region of my spine. I look back on it now and wonder how I retained my reason through that long and trying ordeal. There were months and months when I got no natural sleep and my nervous system which I had been obliged to take.

"One day I read the statement of a man who had been cured of a case like mine by Dr. Williams' Pink Pilis for Pale People and I began taking them. The first box did so well that I continued until six oxess were taken and I was entirely well. I have been in perfect health ever since."

No other medicine in the world has accomplished so many cures in cases that were apparently hopeless as Dr. Williams' Pink Pilis for Pale People. The cure of Mr. Graham is only one instance cut of thousands, and the reason this remedy is so wonderful in its efficacy is because, unlike any other medicine, it acts directly on both the blood and the nerves. Dr. Williams' Pink Pilis contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as a locomotor ataxia, partial pralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralia, rhe cumatism, nervous headache, the after-effects of the grip, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions and all forms of weakness either in male or female. Dr. Williams' Pink Pilis for Pale People are sold by all dealers, or w

After all that had been achieved for Christ shall an infuriated crowd be permitted to array themselves in cruel hatred against the ministers, who had come to preach deliverance from sin and superstition? In that moment Paul rose to the supreme height of a courageous friend and a fearless advocate. He determined to enter the theater, to face the angry multitude, to speak to them if he might. It was only with much difficulty that his friends persuaded him not to make the venture.

that his friends persuaded him not to make the venture.

OUTCRY—(Verses 22, 23, 34.) And so the tumuit continued and increased, the greater part of the assembly ignorant of the cause of the commotion, but all supposing that their religion was opposed. Fanalticism had gone mad. Under these circumstances the Jews began to fear that vengeance might soon be taken on them also, as they represented a foreign religion. They therefore put forward one of their own number, Alexander, the coppersmith, who had been troublesome to Paul (II Tim. iv. 19, expecting that he would defend himself and his own nation against any accusation. The Jows hoped in this way to escape the fury of the hour, and leave the Christians to suffer. But as Alexander began to speak it became the content of the co As Alexander began to speak it became as Alexander began to speak it became known that he was a Jew, and his voice was instantly silenced by the noisy clamor of those who were unwilling to hear. With one voice of the multitude, as before, cried: "Great is Diana of the Ephesians." The words rang through the spacious building, and overwhelmed every contrary effort to speak.

and overwhelmed every contrary effort to speak.

DIANA—(Verse 25.) Ephesus was the capital of a Roman colony, and the civil authorities were required to maintain the peace. After two hours of this noisy demonstration the town clerk appeared on the scene. Because of his position and power he soon bestowed a measure of order, guificient to be heard. He was the man for the hour-with fact possessed by few, he said just the words that were needed to bring quietness to all. He simply told the multitude what they all knew, what every one in Ephesus knew, what had been a matter of belief so long that it could not be successfully refuted, namely, that the city had worshiped the great goddess Diana, which fell down from Jupiter. That was those who heard a flattering testimonial a candid argument and a most judicious pleading. The force of the statement was about this: What is the use of making such a racket about a matter that is firmly fixed in the minds of all? Every one must have seen the purpose of the town clerk.

QUIETNESS—(Verses 25 and 37.) Hav-

one must have seen the purpose of the town clerk.

QUIETNESS—(Verses 35 and 37.) Having made these statements so well calculated to flatter the superstitious multitune, the town official urged all to quietness, the very thing which he above all others was expected to secure. His appeal was so reasonable that all who heard must have felt its force. There was really no occasion for any uproar. The more sensible portion of those before him could plainly see that what had transpired was purely the result of a causeless excitement. But the clerk with remarkable generosity of spirit, did not rest the case here. He proceeded to speak a word of defense for the men who had been so violently treated, who were even then held in the grasp of the angry mob. He seemed to know something of the deportment of Gaius and Aristarchus, who must have behaved themselves in Ephesus in such manner as to be without accusation. Their vindication at this time was complete. It was authoritatively declared that they had done and said nothing against the popular religion—they had not robbed churches or biasphemed the goddess.

LEGALITY—(Verses 38 and 35.) Here a robbed churches or blasphemed the goddees.

LEGALITY—(Verses 38 and 39.) Here a caveat was thrust into the clerk's address.

If, as might have been the case, notwithstanding the loyalty of the people to their religion and the innocence of the apprehended disciples, there was any real grievance, there was a legal mode of redress.

If Demetrius, the silversmith, had really been injured, as he claimed, a mob could not give him justice. Courts of law were established to try all such matters, where the facts may be rehearsed and a decision calmly reached. This was a pleading for law and order, for the right and dignity of government, for the execution of justice by the duly constituted tribunals, as against those disorderly and passionate outbursts that would secure good to no one. In this aspect of the case the Roman official appears to excellent advantage. Rome had conquered the world and had imposed forms of civil government upon all the subject peoples of whatever race or tongue. Submission to lawful authority was therefore required.

PRUDENCE—(Verse 40.) There was still mission to lawful authority was therefore required.

PRUDENCE—(Verse 40.) There was still another point which had not been considered by those who, with clamor, had rushed into the theater, a point which the clerk used with good effect to reach the end he sought. Riots and disorders of all kinds, occurring outside of the forms of law are temporary subversions of government, and therefore officials are obligated to inquire into them, their causes and motives. In such investigation the parties who had begun the trouble might be summoned to answer and might, in fact, be punished as disturbers of the peace. The crowd saw at once that they were liable to arrest, to trial and to imprisonment. Prudence alone, a regard for their own welfare, would dictate that they should quietly disperse to their homes. This they promptly did. The Government of Rome in the province was thus respected, and all things were speedily restored to their accustomed order—a genuine triumph was effected over the heated passions of men.

ine triumph was effected over the heated passions of men.

REFLECTIONS—The instructive points of this lesson may be arranged under three general heads: I. We have a view of human nature, when moved by prejudice, superstition and selfishness—its animosity, excitability, thoughtiessness, involving the innocent and menacing the rights and interests of society. 2. We are the value and power of civil government in restraining and regulating the actions of men, promoting order and securing justice. Any form of government deserves the consideration of men and is worthy of support until it becomes subversive of the interests it is appointed to guard. 3. We see how Christiansmay establish their innocence and compel public approval, thereby escaping censure, how they may come into peril unjustly, but escape through the interposition of constituted authority, how the Government may become a friend and heiper to Christianity, and truth and rightecousness may be established through a joint action of the church and the state. The mob sustained Diana; Rome defended the aposties.

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY DISCUSSES PEACH CROP.

Cent of Buds Are Alive-Other Fruits.

Snedeker, at which the condition of the fruit crop was made the subject of special investigation. President Snedeker sent out notices a few days ago to each member, requesting that a careful examination be made into the condition of the fruit on his place, especially the peaches. According to the report of every member present yesterday the peach crop has undoubtedly been killed in Madison, Macoupin and Jersey counties, with the exception of a variety known as "Richi's Hardy," and but a smail per cent of the latter buds are alive. The killing of the buds is attributed to the cold snap of three weeks ago, when the buds were on the point of bursting. Rain was frozen on the buds. The apricots are alive did and all the varieties of pears are damaged to a considerable extent. Enough buds are alive on the pear trees, however, to insure an average crop. The horticulturists reported the plums uninjured and that the apples are doing well with the prospect for an enormous yield in that section of the State.

Doctor W. H. C. Smith and Miss Hannah Davis Godicey, the secretary of the society, made a report of the meeting places during the year.

SPEAKER MILLER WILL TRY HIS HAND

Will Introduce Bill to Unravel Southern Illinois Judicial Apportionment Tangle.

ALL MEASURES NOW ON TABLE

Republicans Are Preparing to Swallow the Bitter Pill of Civil-Service Reform Introduced by Governor Yates.

BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT. Springfield, Ill., March 5.-The effort to re apportion Southern Illinois judicial districts to Republican advantage will be renewed next week in the House. Speaker Miller now has shown his hand in the matter and intends to use his influence to bring about or force an agreement between the Representatives who have hitherto wished to gerrymander the counties around to suit their individual convenience.

their individual convenience.

All bills providing a new arrangement of Southern circuits have been laid on the table by the Judicial Apportionment Committee. A new bill will be drawn redistricting so that the direuits will conform very nearly to the present congressional boundaries.

Speaker Miller may introduce the new measure himseif. Regarding the matter, he said to-day that the proposed change is a perty advantage which should be taken, and for which Southern Illinois Republicans as a whole are looking. He has been accused of indifference toward the plan and decided that it was incumbent upon him to take action.

that it was incumbent upon him to take action.

Two other bills affecting Southern Illinois are being actively pushed by Representatives Bundy and Lindly, both strong in the Republican councils. Bundy's provides a substitute for the existing basis of assessment—one-third of the market value of property, instead of one-fifth, as is the present figure. This means a two-thirds increase. It would do very well in counties where values are not high, but would be a serious matter in Chicago and the richer districts. The bill has been reported out of the revenue committee with the recommendation that it do not pass. This does not mean necessarily that it will be defeated, as Southern Illinois, Democrats and Republicans, and a good representation from the central part of the State, will be for it. The fraction, however, probably will be amended to one-fourth.

TOWNSHIP ELECTIONS.

TOWNSHIP ELECTIONS. Cicero J. Lindly's measure would change the date for holding township elections from the spring to the fail. Township elections from the spring to the fail. Township officers—a Supervisors, a Cierk, an Assessor and minor officials—now are chosen for two years. Lindly would have a four-year term, and would place the township candidates upon the general election ballots. It is argued that in the spring the farmers are busy and cannot give proper attention to politics, while in the fail they are free. Also, to do away with this extra election would mean a saving of $250,000 to the State.

A counter argument lies in the fact that in the spring less of the partisan spirit attaches to a township fight, whereas in the fall the township office holders elected would certainly be of the party dominant in the township; and partisanship is not thought such a good thing so near home. Governor Yates's State civil service measure was advanced to second reading this morning. Cale Johnson (Dem.) moved when the bill came up that further consideration of it be postponed.

"I believe," said he, "that the gentlemen on the other side of the House are four-flushing on this bill and do not want to pass it." pass it."
Mr. Trautmann: "Will the gentleman explain what he means by four-flushing?"
Lindly moved that Johnson's motion be tabled. This was accomplished on viva voce

Mr. Johnson then rose to a point of order, Mr. Johnson then rose to a point of order, He said that the synopsis of House bills shows the civil-service measure to have been introduced by the Governor, and called attention to the fact that the rules required all bills to be introduced by a member.

"I should like to know," said he, "when the Governor became a member of this Legislature."

which will be convened at Jerseyville on Monday, March 16, by Judge O. P. Thompson of Jacksonville, Ill., was yesterday. Among the suits filed was one by Bartholomew C. Milford against Julia F. They have nine children.

The Reverend Henry Dixon of Rockbridge, Ill., officiated, assisted by the Reverends J. W. Flee and S. F. Rice of Medora.

The burial was in the Medora Cometery. The death of Postmaster Artman occurred suddenly from heart disease on Wednesday morning. Mr. Artman was a Sergeant in Company C of the Fourteenth Illinois Infantry during the war between the States. As soon as the first reading was ended Mr. Sherman moved that it be made a special order for next Tuesday. This carried.

"FOURFLUSHING."

Mr. Johnson's charge of "fourflushing" is not far from the truth. Not all the Governor's lieutenants want civil service, and it is not at all certain that the Governor himself is overanxious to lose his lengthy pay roll. Lindly of Bond has become the ardent champion of civil service, as his work in sending the bill from committee and defense of it on the floor to-day indicate. It is because Lindiy's prestige is involved. He was put on the Civil-Service Committee against his objection, by the organization, expressly to look after the Governor's bill. Look after it he must and will. But others are not in Lindiy's position. Powerful floor men, such as Bundy and Shurtleff, from Republican ranks, and many of the Democrats, are frankly assainst such a cumbersome and experimental reform.

Neverthelese, the bill probably will pass. The majority of the members are so hemimed in with political considerations that they cannot take the stand on the proposition as their inclination dictates. Both State platforms declared for civil service; and Sherman, leader of the Republican rebels, started the civil-service cry.

The expectation was that all bills on the subject would die in committee, but, now that the members will be pushed to the wall and must go on record, they can do nothing but swallow the bitter pill of their own making.

The Democrats lost an opportunity to delay the supreme judicial reapportionment bill this morning. Though there was far from a querum in the House, the point was not raised, and the bill was introduced from committee without objection.

BILLS ADVANCED.

A list of bills on first reading were advanced to second reading. Among them was Drew's drastic repeal of the fellow-servant law. This latter is of the most inclusive nature. It would strike even at the farmer and his "hired help." If the farmer pitching hay should put his employe's eye out by an fill-directed

The bill provides that no persons shall practice medicine or midwifery after October 1, 1903, unless previously registered, without securing a certificate from the State Board. A prohibitive, license fee of $100 a month is fixed for lecensing itinerant vendors of drugs, ointments, or appliances for the healing of disease.

This bill is expected to stir up a hornet's nest. Medical gractice bills do, as a rule.

HIGHWAYMEN SEIZED $25,000.

Confederate Tried to Carry Booty Away on Horse, but Failed. Away on Horse, but Failed.

Johannesburg, March 6.—A desperate attempt at highway robbery in the center of Johannesburg was made to-day.

Two men attacked two customs officers conveying £5,000 to the bank, and throwing pepper in their eyes, secured the money bars, which they threw to a horseman, who galloped off.

The horseman in his flight knocked down a man named Brandon, who was fatally injured and soon expired.

Subsequently the horse bolted and unseated the rider, who was then arrested and the money recovered.

SMOTHER A COUGH.

You can smother a cough with your hand but you can't cure it that way. Some medicines only smother coughs.

Scott's Emulsion cures them. Old coughs and deep-rooted coughs can't be cured until the inflammation which causes them has been replaced by healthy tissue.

That is exactly the kind of thorough work Scott's Emulsion does. It changes the entire nature of the throat and lungs so that there is nothing to cough about.

Detroit, Mich., March 6.—Judge Frank A.
Hooker of Charlotte was to-night renominated for Justice of the Supreme Court of this State for a term of ten years, by the stormiest Republican State Convention held in this State since the Grand Rapids Convention that nominated Governor Biles in 1898.

Seven candidates were in the field against Judge Hooker.

The convention was stampeded on the
